300 Men In Service To Cast Local Votes

BALLOTS TO BE MAILED TO ALL PARTS OF WORLD

Service Men To Get Full County, State, Federal Election Ticket

QUICK RETURN EXPECTED

County Board Looking For Additional Requests From Fighters

Members and employees of the Pickaway county board of elections Wednesday were getting ready to rush ballots to all parts of the world for the coming election to some 300 residents of the county who are now in armed service overseas.

Wednesday was the date absent voters ballots were to start on their way to men and women in service, but the local board was unable to start mailing because the ballots were not ready. They are expected by Thursday and arrangements are being made to mail ballots to all who have requested them or for whom relatives have made requests.

The service voter will receive a complete state, local and federal ballot, including any "least tax questions or local options, by air mail. Air mail envelopes will be provided for the return of the ballots. By using this system service men and women can be assured their votes will be received here in time to count in the election.

May File Requests

Wednesday approximately 300 requests for ballots had been received from those in service and relatives. Board members pointed out that although this is the date ballots were to start on their way overseas, there is no deadline for requests. Applications for ballots from those in service and from relatives will be accepted from now on until election day and ballots will be forwarded just as fast as possible after requests are received.

U. S. Bombs Dropped On Canadians

Little Damage Done By Pilots' Mistake In Caen Sector

WITH THE FIRST CANADIAN ARMY IN FRANCE, Aug. 9—Some of the bombs dropped by United States heavy bombers over the battle area south of Caen fell in the Canadian lines, causing casualties.

One senior Canadian staff officer was wounded.

About 600 United States heavies were scheduled to bomb an area in advance of the most forward elements of the attacking First Canadian Army.

Everything was going well when suddenly one group of bombers left the path and flew over the Canadians' own lines.

They dropped their bombs in this area, causing a few casualties. A Canadian spokesman said that "between six and 30" bombs were dropped.

He added "although the incident was unfortunate it in no way affected our offensive operation. No serious damage was done."

NEGRO TRAINING PLAN RESUMED IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9—The operational training program of eight Negro employees of the Philadelphia Transportation Co.—crux of the strike which crippled movements in the nation's second ranking war production center for six days—was ordered resumed today as a federal grand jury convened to probe the work stoppage.

Nearly 100 witnesses were scheduled to appear before the panel which will delve into circumstances surrounding the strike under the Smith-Connally act and possibly the more drastic Second War Powers act if there are evidences of a conspiracy to sabotage the war effort.

Henry A. Schweinhaut, special assistant to the attorney general, declared that "there was nothing in the previous cases (charging violations of the Anti-Strike act) as aggravated as the one that exists here. There is not one that can compare in magnitude to this one."

Meanwhile Major Gen. Philip Hayes, War department representative in charge of operating the transit system, announced: "Operations of the Philadelphia Transportation Co. have now been restored to normal."

Battle-dressed soldiers rode in all trolley cars, subway and elevated trains and buses.

TICKETS STILL ON SALE FOR BENEFIT GAME

Final arrangements were being made Wednesday for the Kahn Jewellers - Harper Thatcher girls' softball game scheduled for 7 p. m. Thursday in Ted Lewis park.

Tickets for the contest, which is being staged to raise money for the shelter house fund at the park, are still on sale. They may be obtained downtown at Hamilton and Ryan and the Mykranitz drug stores, or from any of the solicitors who have been canvassing the city.

Local umpires have been picked for the contest and a loud speaker system will be used at the park to acquaint the expected large crowd with everything that is going on.

The game itself is expected to be interesting because of the intense rivalry between the two teams, rated among the best in Ohio.

VICHY SAYS LIBERATION RUMORS SEETH IN PARIS

NEW YORK, Aug. 9—Vichy radio propagandist Jean Paquis complained in a broadcast over the Nazi-dominated station, according to a British radio report today, that "Paris is seething with rumors of the imminence of liberation."

Will Women Go Back To Kitchen After War? Industrialists Wonder

NEW YORK, Aug. 9—Women, never rated the world's most easily understandable creatures, gave post-war planning industrialists a prime headache today as the big guns of industry debated they will or won't go back to the kitchen and sink.

As news of victories swung industrial talk towards reconversion, business men consulted statistics and surveys to determine whether women's place is in the home—or whether she has earned and will insist on a rightful place in the labor market.

And women, staying true to their age-old prerogative, remained unpredictable.

Four hundred of the 500 women workers in the East Springfield, Mass., plant of the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co., in a poll announced today, declared they wished to continue work after the war.

But more than 50 percent of the thousands of women war workers in 16 states surveyed in an American Legion Auxiliary poll declared they were anxious to return to their homes at the war's end. Industry itself has found women valuable through the distinct contributions they can make to manufacturing.

Frederick C. Crawford, chairman of the board of directors of the National Association of Manufacturers and president of the Thompson Products, Inc., of Cleveland, asserted that "in this war many women have staked their claim in the heart of the industrial market."

"If women had not fitted into the niches of the war production machine successfully, industry could scratch them off the labor list without a backward glance or regret once the boys come back," he continued. "And the girls, of their own accord, would simply go home and forget the whole thing." (Continued on Page Two)

17 OUT OF 26 FEARED DEAD IN CLIPPER CRASH

MIAMI, Fla., Aug. 9—Seventeen of 26 passengers aboard a Pan American Airways Clipper were believed today to have perished when the four-motored plane crashed in Nipe bay, on the north-eastern tip of Cuba, during a take-off for Miami yesterday.

Nine passengers and all five crew members, including the pilot, Capt. M. J. Williams of Miami, were rescued. Among the surviving passengers were Sixto O. Bonilla, who said the plane, apparently unable to get into the air from the rough waters of the bay, turned over and landed upside down.

Bonilla said he was able to escape by slashing his safety belt with a knife. Others, unable to remove their safety belts, were trapped as the big seaplane sank in the bay.

All the passengers except two were residents of Puerto Rico.

CLOSE SENATE VOTE LOOMS ON RECONVERSION

Major Provisions Offered In Murray-Kilgore Bill Face Early Test

GEORGE HITS PROPOSAL

Georgia Senator Opposes Theory Of Spending Way Into Prosperity

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9—Close senate votes on major provisions of the Murray-Kilgore reconversion and unemployment benefits bill were foreseen today as leaders sought to bring about a decision this week.

Feeling between rival factions was intensified to such a degree that some senators, including both Democrats and Republicans, sought to effect a compromise on means of converting the nation from a war to a peace basis.

Sen. Walter F. George (D) Ga., fighting the Murray-Kilgore bill being supported by New Deal senators, declared that it was based on the theory that the nation can spend itself into prosperity.

"This bill heads up all emergency-spending doctrines that have prevailed in the United States for many years," said George.

Sen. Harley Kilgore (D) W. Va., defended the Murray-Kilgore bill on the ground that liberal payments for unemployment insurance to war workers together with creation of federal jobs would help cushion the shock of transfer from a war to a peace-time economy.

Sees Great Cost

George laid before the senate an estimate of costs of the Murray-Kilgore bill unemployment benefits provisions of 10 billion 405 million dollars over a period of three years.

The estimate was prepared by Chairman Arthur J. Altmeyer, of the Social Security Board, who admitted that the basis of unemployment on which he made his calculations may prove to be wrong. He "assumed" unemployment of four million persons in 1945, eight million in 1946 and a drop again to four million in 1947.

Kilgore, however, estimated cost of the bill at seven billion eight hundred million dollars over a two-year period.

Republican leaders, it was learned, were considering offering a compromise plan under which state unemployment insurance systems would be retained intact, but the federal government would add sufficient funds to assure payment of a uniform unemployment compensation—perhaps $20 or $25 a week for a limited period—in all states.

JAMES MOFFIT BELIEVES WAR NEARING CLOSE

James Moffit, attached to the specialist corps of the U. S. Air Forces, predicted an early end of the war at the Junior Chamber of Commerce meeting held Tuesday evening in Hanley's restaurant.

Mr. Moffit, guest at the meeting, related some of his experiences during his 66 missions across the Atlantic.

Harry Graf pointed out some of the benefits of being a member of the Junior Chamber of Commerce in a short talk.

Two special guests at the meeting were Clark Will, president of the Third National bank, and John Magill, manager of the Western Auto store. They were the two business men invited to attend the meeting. At the next meeting two more business men will be guests.

Other guests at the meeting were George Mallett, Elliott Barnhill and Lee Cook.

Mechanized Farming Cuts Opportunity For Post-War Job Hunters

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9—Rep. Hope (R) Kan., said today that the growth of mechanized farming has drastically reduced the employment opportunities available to returning servicemen and demobilized war workers in postwar agriculture.

Hope, who is ranking Republican member of the house agriculture committee, said agricultural manpower has dropped from 37 percent in 1900 to 15 percent in 1944 and "is still falling" due to increased use of farm machinery.

"There may be temporary checks in this descent," he added, "but mechanization and better farming practices will continue to increase output per worker and probably at a greater rate than the increase in agricultural consumption."

Urging a "conservative" approach in postwar agricultural planning, Hope said that sweeping commitments to put large numbers of discharged servicemen on farms would be unjust to veterans and farm operators.

"There is danger that in our desire to assist soldiers in reestablishing themselves after the war we will do them a great injury by letting our hearts rather than our heads determine the policy to be followed," he declared.

The Kansan outlined a broad nine-point postwar farm program envisioning capacity utilization of U. S. agriculture:

Disposition of surplus government-owned agricultural commodities and farm land for "productive purposes" only; revision of the 1909-1914 parity formula in line with present-day needs; better marketing facilities; extensive studies in crop insurance; land conservation program; federal reclamation policy to provide for use of new land only when needed; farm cooperatives to facilitate marketing of seasonal surpluses; extension of city health, educational and recreational facilities to rural areas; full farm production to expand postwar foreign trade.

CONTROL OF OIL MAY BALK WAR

Britain And U. S. Sign Pact To Withhold Fuel From Aggressor Nations

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9—Great Britain and the United States served notice today that they intend to use their control of most of the world's petroleum resources to restrain any country which might threaten the future peace of the world.

With the signing of the Anglo-American petroleum agreement by Acting Secretary of State Stettinius and Lord Beaverbrook, it was revealed that these two countries intend to withhold oil from aggressor countries, and to admit to the new international petroleum council only the "peaceable countries" of the world.

The joint agreement, now published for the first time, makes frequent reference to the terms "military and collective security," and "peaceable countries."

It was clear that the two governments intended to use oil as a weapon in the same way that Britain proposed to use it to prevent the Italian aggression against Ethiopia in 1935. Oil sanctions failed in that case, partly because the United States was not a member of the League of Nations.

"We intend to use the life blood of locomotion to oil the wheels of (Continued on Page Two)

BRITISH PAPER SALE BARRED IN U. S. ARMY CAMPS

LONDON, Aug. 9—Sale of British newspapers and magazines were barred today in American Army camps in Britain and France until after the November presidential elections in the U. S.

The step was taken in compliance with the soldier-vote law which says "no member of the U. S. armed forces shall have his vote influenced in any way." An American Army official emphasized that the move "in no way reflects on British newspapers."

Russ Shatter Defenses On East Prussia Line In Hard Battle

By International News Service
Rapid deterioration of all German defenses before Paris became an imminent possibility today as the Nazi high command admitted American penetration of historic Le Mans and the Canadian field command in France announced a breakthrough of German positions south of Caen on a limited front.

With St. Malo, Brest, Lorient, St. Nazaire and Nantes faced with early Allied occupancy, American British and Canadian troops were carving great gouges into the German lines and when all of the Breton peninsula has been overrun—and possibly before—the Allies will have opened a concerted drive to liberate Paris.

A field officer attached to the staff of Gen. D. G. Gregor's Canadian second army which has borne the brunt of bitter fighting around LONDON, Aug. 9—Nazi Field Marshal Karl Gerd von Rundstedt, former German commander on the Western front reportedly has arrived in Lisbon with a considerable quantity of gold, the diplomatic writer of the London Evening News said today.

Caen gave this striking picture of crumbling Nazi defenses before the French capital.

"The German hinge position south of Caen is becoming precarious," he said.

"We have broken through the Germans' southern lines south of Caen on a limited front."

The officer was asked about the nature of German defenses that now lie before the advancing Canadians.

"The Germans put all their stuff in the shop-window," he replied, "and that window has now been broken."

Behind the American advance toward Paris, Yank forces in Brittany fought against last-ditch enemy resistance for the port and naval base of Brest, furiously battled other Nazis on the outskirts of the port city of St. Malo and engaged the Germans in tough fighting before the port of Lorient, on the south side of the Breton peninsula. The British radio said house-to-house fighting was in progress at St. Malo.

Hun Push Smashed

An Allied headquarters spokesman said meanwhile that the major German counter-attack around Mortain against the American corridor between Normandy and Brittany was definitely smashed, although the Nazis continue to resist stubbornly near Mortain.

While the Germans recoiled from blows of Allied ground troops throughout the French battle areas, Allied headquarters reported close aerial support to the British and Canadians southeast of Caen by bombers which also blasted enemy airfields, fuel dumps and Nazi communications in widespread areas and took a heavy toll of German transports and gun positions.

DESERT "FOX" FACES FURTHER BRAIN SURGERY

LONDON, Aug. 9—A Danish brain surgeon was reported preparing today to perform a second operation on German Field Marshal Gen. Erwin Rommel, reportedly wounded recently in Normandy.

A Reuter dispatch from Stockholm said the Dane, Dr. Eduard Busch, removed a shell splinter from Rommel's brain in the first operation.

JOSEPH GLITT SENDS $10 TO CITY PARK FUND

Applause for Circleville residents who are pushing improvements at Ted Lewis park and financial help for the recreation area came Wednesday from the South Pacific.

In a letter to The Herald Joseph N. Glitt, radioman third class, said he was glad to read of the vision here of Ted Lewis for the dedication of the park and to learn the park is being equipped and used as a recreation center.

He expressed regret he is not here to help enjoy the park, but Brothers Charles and Howard Glitt are carrying on in his place.

To help out the park fund he sent a money order for $10. He said: "enclosed is birthday money order from my wife to me. I don't know of any better place than to sign it over to Ted Lewis Recreation fund. Hope they are really active when all of the boys get back. Also would like to see some interest in Circleville Athletic Club, one of Circleville's foremost sport backers over a period of years. Keep it going until the boys return to take active part again."

Of the war he says: "We're closing in on the Japs; hoping it is over soon. Plenty hot; food fair; sleep scarce, but above all, nice cool drinking water. Out here that is something. Getting the papers usually around six weeks late. Really enjoying reading them. Keep up the good work locally."

Joe Glitt was active in sports circles here between 1926 and 1936.

north of Arrezzo. Here the Allies captured Monte Grillo, an important hill feature in the Arno river valley route to Bibbiena, 32 miles east of Florence.

Numerous German counter-attacks east of the Upper Arno valley were repulsed and a second hill feature west of Pontassieve fell into Allied hands.

Bombers Active

At the same time, Mediterranean air force planes continued to lash at German communications in southern France, Northern Italy and Yugoslavia and at enemy shipping in the Adriatic. Heavy bombers of the Eighth Air Force landed in Italy after taking off from Russian bases and attacking the Ploesti area of Romania.

Frontline dispatches from the Eastern front declared Russia's Red Army has broken through German defenses on the East Prussia frontier. The midnight communiqué from Moscow did not mention the fighting in this area, saying only that the Germans in their desperate effort to save East Prussia from Soviet invasion had reinforced the defenders with troops brought from Hungary, Italy, Yugoslavia, Norway, Western Poland and even Germany itself.

The Moscow communiqué's description of new Soviet gains in Latvia overshadowed reports of fighting on other sectors of the eastern front, as the Germans increased their resistance all along the line.

Russ Advance

One Russian army advancing in Latvia towards Riga captured Krustpils, rail and highway gateway to the Latvian capital, 75 miles to the northwest. Other Russian units heading for Riga from the vicinity of the Latvian-Lithuanian border beat off 40 German counter-attacks and overran 80 communities.

In the Carpathian area at the southern end of the front, Soviet spearheads pushed forward 16 and 18 miles northwest and west of captured Sanbor, important rail center at the gateway to Czechoslovakia and the Balkans.

From Pearl Harbor came word that American forces pressing the reconquest of strategic Guam have still further tightened the trap against remaining Japanese troops. A communiqué said 10,000 Jap bodies have been counted on Guam.

Nipponese forces trapped in northern British New Guinea were in a similarly desperate position after American troops split into two columns which now threaten to divide remnants of the Jap 18th Army.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., Aug. 9—Thirty-nine-year-old J. W. (Bill) Fulbright, freshman congressman from the Third Arkansas district, defeated Gov. Homer Adkins for the Democratic senatorial nomination on the basis of incomplete returns today from the state's run-off primary.

The Democratic nomination in Arkansas is tantamount to election. Adkins, long a political enemy of the congressman, charged that Fulbright was getting the support of the CIO Political Action Committee, which Fulbright denied.

tion provisions of the Murray-Kilgore bill.

Under the measure, a work administrator is given wide authority to give training to idle workers with payments up to $100 a month. He is authorized to "exercise all powers necessary for the effective administration of this title."

"Such unlimited power in an administrator," said the report, "can lead to great abuse of the workers of this country and leave to the administrator, by the making of rules the determination as to who may work and who may not work; perhaps as to what organization the worker must belong to or not belong in order to secure employment; where he must move or be transferred in order to get work; and to determine whether anyone is unemployed under the provisions of the bill."

"This virtually sets up a national service act over unemployed workers of this country."

Sen. Pepper (D) Florida, supporting the Murray-Kilgore bill, was optimistic over its chances. He denied claims that the measure was too liberal because the maximum unemployment benefits allowed under it total $35 a week. He said that an impression had been created that all unemployed workers would receive this amount.

"A civilian will receive a maximum of 75 percent of his former wage, and a civilian with no dependents will in no case receive more than $20 a week," he said. "Only a civilian with three or more dependents and whose former wage was $48 or more a week could receive the maximum benefit of $35."

The maximum for veterans, he said, is the same as for civilians.

HIT SKIP AUTO INJURES MAN NORTH OF CITY

Orville Mayes, about 20, apparent victim of a hit-skip driver, was removed to University hospital Wednesday morning after he was found along Route 23, a few miles north of Cincinnati.

William Topolosky, coming to Cincinnati from Columbus, found the young man along the road about 6 a. m. and brought him in to Berger hospital. Dr. Walter F. Heine examined him before he was removed in the Deffenbaugh ambulance to Columbus.

City police reported the man was in great pain and apparently was suffering from a spinal injury and a possible fracture of the left leg. He was not clear in his statements, but police said he said he was on his way to Columbus to see an aunt. He had been working in Galipolis.

He said he was sideswiped by a car which failed to stop.

Ducks are said to live about 15 years.

good will and to plug the wheels of aggression," one official commented.

The agreement signed last night provides for the establishment of an international petroleum commission which, for the time being, will be confined to representatives of the British and American governments.

Later, following the convocation of a world petroleum conference an international petroleum council will be set up to include representatives of all "peaceable countries." The agreement calls for a world petroleum conference "as soon as practicable."

In the meantime, the two governments have declared their intention to regulate the production and marketing of oil through the revolutionary new agreement. It was made clear that both governments wish to abandon the cut-throat competition which characterized oil exploitation after the last war.

Lieut. Donald W. Henry has been reported missing in action over Germany, according to notification received from the War department by his wife and parents.

The son of Principal J. Wray Henry and Mrs. Henry of North Court street, he was serving as a bombardier in the air corps and was on his 21st mission when he was reported missing July 18. He entered service in September, 1942, and has been in Europe since February, 1944.

Lt. Henry was wounded April 30 over Europe and hospitalized two months. His first flight after leaving the hospital was July 6.

His wife, Mrs. Wahnita Barnhart Henry, lives on Montclair avenue.

STAGE SET FOR RENOMINATION OF CLARE LUCE

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., Aug. 9—Clare Boothe Luce was slated to be renominated tonight by the Fairfield county Republicans for U. S. representative for the Fourth congressional district.

Mrs. Luce will be opposed for the office by Miss Margaret E. Connors, 29-year-old Bridgeport attorney who was nominated by the Democratic county committee last night.

Miss Connors a dark haired, attractive woman of medium height and a pleasant voice was nominated by acclamation. She said she would make her campaign on issues rather than personalities. She was educated at Wellesley and the Yale university law school and is a former deputy secretary of state for Connecticut.

NEW PLASTIC SEEN AS BOON TO DISFIGURED

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Aug. 9—Development of a new flexible and amazingly lifelike plastic to be used for restoration of servicemen suffering disfigurement in the war was announced today at the University of Illinois.

The new plastic, which can be tinted to blend exactly with the skin for the replacement of noses, ears, fingers and other parts of the body, was credited to Dr. Stanley Tylman, a professor in the university's dental college.

Dr. Tylman, who has been working with the material with members of his staff for three years, described it as not only more lifelike, but more durable than any other artificial restorer ever developed.

Medical officers of the armed services were reported to be studying the new plastic for possible use on a mass basis.

The plastic is described as having a texture similar to human skin, a tissue-like flexibility and a lifelike translucency and containing features that enable it to be colored permanently to blend with individual coloring and to be finished so finely that its union with the living tissue is not recognizable.

HERSHEY URGES ARMED TRAINING FOR ALL YOUTHS

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 9—Universal military service for 18-year-olds after the war was advocated today by Maj. General Lewis B. Hershey, national director of selective service.

"I have been in favor of universal military service for 30 years," he said. "In that time, I have seen two wars and my opinion hasn't changed. Compulsory military service may not have stopped the wars, but not having it didn't help us any."

The general declared that a large majority of the 4,000,000 men rejected for military service during the war would have been able to fight if they had been conscripted at 18 for a year's service.

"Between 400,000 and 500,000 were rejected because of illiteracy. If they had been given a year in the service, they would have at least learned how to read," he said.

Will Women Go Back To Kitchen After War? Industrialists Wonder

But they did fit in and with eminent success.

"Industry cannot disregard the contributions women have made through the very qualities that distinguish them from the men they replace—woman's exceptional dexterity, her patience, responsiveness to orders, and alert attitude..." Crawford stated.

"Many women will of course prefer to drop out," he added. "Many definitely should for the sake of home as well as the labor situation. However, according to a survey of workers' opinions gathered by reliable agencies a substantial number will wish to remain."

Of the 500 women voting in the Westinghouse Poll, 165 are married and 65 of the married women stated their continuing to work would be an important contribution to the support of their families.

The American Legion poll showed that of the more than 50 percent anxious to return home, 20 percent stated their return depended on the ability of their husbands to find jobs and 25 percent are eager to give up their jobs "provided husbands' income is adequate."

Of the 48 percent expecting to go on working, the chief reasons given were "want to buy a home," "fear that soldier husbands will have difficulty finding jobs," "want to see that the children are educated," and "want to stay off relief."

SHAW ON THE AIR

BERNARD Shaw is at it again. Asked on his 88th birthday what should be done with Germany, he is as positive as ever and as irritating.

"If Germany is defeated", says Shaw, "her relationship to her conquerors will be that of a wounded prisoner of war to his captors. When we take such a prisoner, we give him every care and attention until he is cured, exactly as if he were one of our own soldiers." Even if Shaw recommends this treatment, it is not likely to be adopted at the peace conference.

Nor does he favor punishment of German war leaders. "Do you think", he asks, "that the heavy job of restoring half-ruined Europe could be done by persons with their heads full of punishment?" He is, however, willing that Hitler and the Jew-baiters be driven out, as were Napoleon and the Kaiser. Asked whether Germany should be made to help rebuild the cities she had destroyed, he retorts, "Germany will hardly be able, without our help, to rebuild German cities we have destroyed."

With one statement of Shaw's everyone can agree, the more so if Shaw's advice should chance to be followed. He says, "Whatever arrangements follow the war, we must still live dangerously, whether we like it or not."

POSTWAR PLANES

A two-seater plane that will be easier to drive than an automobile is envisioned by the Engineer and Research Corporation of Riverdale, Md., which plans to build it.

The entire operation, says Harry Agarter, a company official, "is with your control wheel. If you want to go left, turn the wheel to the left; if right, turn the wheel to the right. To go down, push ahead on the wheel; to rise, pull back. There are fewer control operations than in motoring, because there is neither a clutch nor a foot throttle."

A tricycle landing gear makes taxiing much easier, and permits operations under wind conditions that would keep the average light plane in the hangar.

The plane is not foolproof. Mr. Agarter says, "Nothing that travels at 100 miles an hour is foolproof. It is, however, extremely fool-resistant." It is not stated what happens if the plane is in the sky and the engine stalls.

Kurt Zeitzler was Hitler's personal choice for chief of staff. Word now comes from Germany that he, too, was involved in the plot against Hitler. This might have been expected. When Nazis are so lacking in the ordinary decencies of life as their record indicates, it would be too much to believe that they possess loyalty.

Germany Still Equipped With Plenty of Weapons | Quality Is Deteriorating But Backlog Tremendous

By HELEN ESSARY
Central Press Columnist

● AMERICAN MILITARY CHIEFTAINS do not anticipate that the Germans will be forced to seek peace for some time because of a lack of raw materials or weapons, despite the fact that Allied bombings are believed to have cut Nazi production as much as 20 per cent.

They point out that the Germans started the war with a huge backlog of munitions and still have plenty of ground equipment, including artillery, although they have dipped heavily into their supply of planes.

Bombings Cut Nazi Output By 20 Per Cent
American production experts say, however, that the quality of German weapons has been deteriorating, with the Nazis forced to use substitutes for substitutes in some instances.

United States war production, steadily inching upward, was approximately one and one-half times that of the Axis last year, while the United Nations output was figured at two and one-half times as great as Germany and Japan.

Jap production has been estimated at about a quarter to a third as large as Germany's output.

● THAT ANNOUNCEMENT of the forthcoming interchange of musical geniuses (or is it geni?) of the republic of Russia and the republic of the United States as a method of honoring the great Sergei Rachmaninoff will bring hope to the hearts and relief to the ears of some Americans who are getting tired of the talents of trombonists, saxophonists and crooners.

Wouldn't it be pleasant if we could send some of our shouting jazz bands beside which the head waiter generally sits most of us, to the broad, desolate steppes of old Russia?

Naturally, the exchange of talent would present us with some pretty awful numbers. What, for instance, is the Soviet equivalent

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

BANKER RETURNS

WASHINGTON—The row inside the War Production Board over peacetime conversion is basically between big business and little business, but some interesting personalities have come back to Washington and taken unique sides in the fight. One is Sidney Weinberg, partner in the giant investment banking firm of Goldman-Sachs of New York.

Essentially, the big manufacturers, such as General Motors, Du Pont, General Electric and Curtiss-Wright, which have secured the great bulk of war business, want to hold up peacetime conversion until they can finish their war orders. They don't want other firms to get a head start. Their friends inside the War Production Board, led by charming Charles E. Wilson, efficient head of General Electric, have fought tooth and nail for this position.

But WPBoss Donald Nelson maintains that little companies which don't get the breaks on war orders should be given a chance for at least some peacetime orders. Several weeks ago, Wilson suggested to Nelson that an old friend, whom both of them could trust, wanted to come back to Washington—namely, Sidney Weinberg. Nelson gladly acquiesced. Weinberg, a director of Nelson's old firm, Sears-Roebuck, had helped him during the early WPB battle with the Army. A former sleuth in naval intelligence during World War I, Weinberg used to be known as Nelson's hatchet man.

But in his recent tour of WPB duty, Weinberg has sided with big business and Nelson's opponent, Wilson. He has been battling vigorously against his old friend Don.

Realizing what a hot spot he had got into, Weinberg was complaining the other day to John Lord O'Brian, War Production Board general counsel and former Republican candidate for Senator from New York.

"I am going to resign," fumed the Goldman-Sachs partner. "Don Nelson's friends have been criticizing me for selling out to Wall Street."

To which solid Republican O'Brian shot back:

"Well, haven't you, Sidney?"

NOTE—Six big firms have received 50 percent of all war orders. 70 percent of the orders went to only 100 firms. Approximately 30,000 other firms have to divide up the remainder.

SCENE IN WASHINGTON DRUG STORE

A small, middle-aged man, wearing a Marine officer's uniform without service ribbons, walked up to the cigar counter in a Washington drug store and almost timidly asked for matches. The clerk handed him a pack of paper matches. The little Marine hesitated, then handed them back.

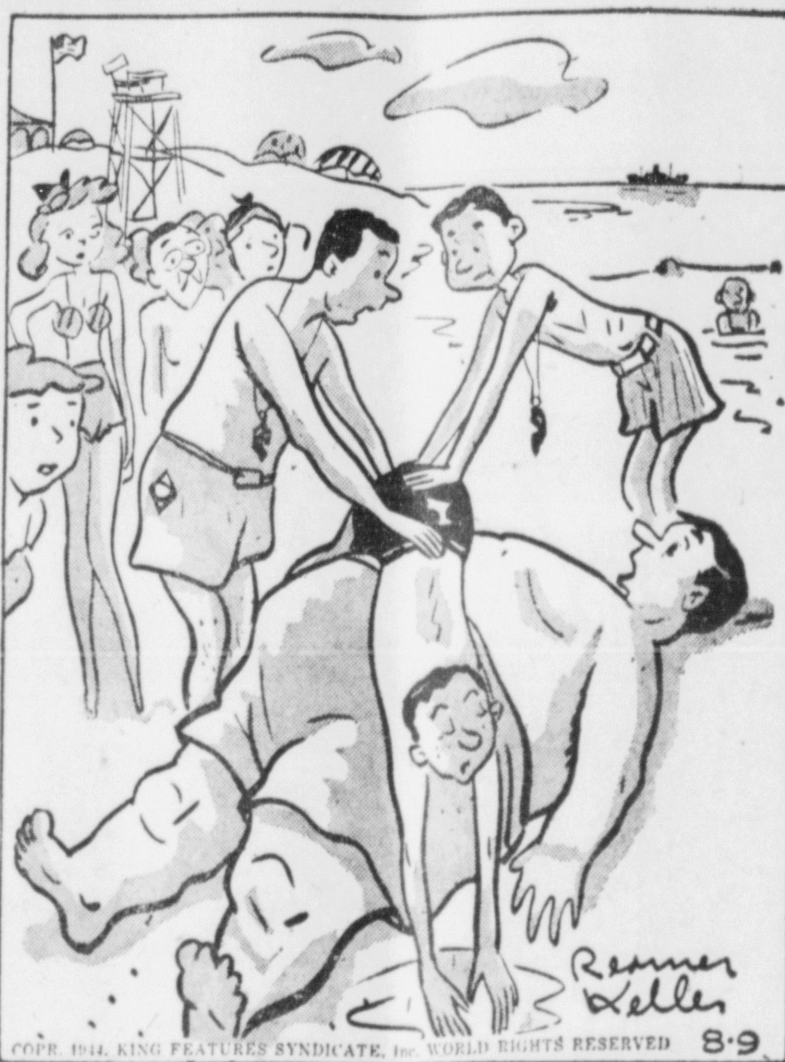

"Oh, I want the long wooden matches," he said. "I am afraid of these—they burn my fingers."

The clerk stared contemptuously. He assumed this was just another swivel-chair officer. What he did not know was that the mild little man was Brig. Gen. Oscar Ray ("Speedy") Caldwell, who led the "Fighting Third" Marines in the initial landing at Bougainville and in the battle of the Gilberts.

Wounded in both World Wars I and II, little "Speedy" Caldwell has the reputation among enlisted Marines as one of the

DIET AND HEALTH

A Wartime Problem

Dangers From Vermin Infestation

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M.D.

WHILE INFESTATION with the body louse is very common in the United States and has been so far as memory reaches it has not constituted a serious health menace until now. Under wartime conditions with large numbers of the population who have been in areas where there is typhus or relapsing fever returning to the United States, they may come back with some of the germs in their blood. True all returning soldiers, sailors and marines are supposed to be de-loused before they re-enter their country, but accidents will happen and anyway the service man who has become a reservoir for louse-borne diseases may pick up a crop of lice and these may proceed to spread the disease to the civil population.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Even if this is a somewhat remote possibility there are plenty of other good reasons for getting rid of such filthy things as lice. And since every once in a while someone in even the highest society comes home with a head full of lice, it is a problem which affects the high and the low, the clean and the dirty, and you might as well know what to do.

There are two varieties of lice—the head louse and the body louse, and they stick pretty much to their own territory. The head louse can be detected by seeing the animal itself slithering in and out among the hairs, as Burns did that day in church which inspired him to write the everlasting lines:

"Oh! was some power the gifle gie us,
To see ourselves as ithers see us."

And even if you don't see the beastie itself you can detect the eggs cemented to a hair looking for all the world like little grains of sand or salt. Of course the infested victim usually knows it by the itching. If he has never had any lice before he may be attacked by a sudden, mysterious itching of the scalp or body. The old hand knows right away what the itch is due to.

Removing Body Lice

On the body, lice leave little red blood clot spots which may be a guide to the fact of invasion.

The proper treatments for louse infestation of the body is first and foremost to get them out of all the underwear and clothes. All the clothes must be steamed and pressed with a hot iron. Such clothing as can be boiled should be boiled.

Most insect powders do not touch them. Sulphur powder, or a powder made up of 96 parts naphthalene, 2 parts iodoform and 2 parts of creosote usually is effective. If the clothing is freed from them they are not often found on the body afterwards, because they remain attached to the clothing even while feeding. The body should be thoroughly bathed and scrubbed and the hairy parts where scratch marks or scales are seen should be shaved. After the bath the skin surface should be sponged with benzene.

Treatment for Head Lice

The head louse is a somewhat more complicated animal to get rid of. The head can be shaved and that will do the trick, but there are obvious disadvantages to that. The old method of treatment was to soak the head and hair thoroughly in equal parts of crude petroleum and olive oil and bandage for 24 hours. A bathing cap can be left over the bandage. The mixture dissolves the glue which attached the eggs to the hair shaft and they can be combed out with a fine comb. It also kills the adult lice. Its objection is that it leaves an odor. The most elegant and latest preparations which are free from all these objections are phenyl cellosolve and benzyl cellosolve. They are made by the Carbon and Carbide Chemical Corporation. They are used in 10 to 40 per cent concentration.

THE REST OF MY LIFE WITH YOU

by Faith Baldwin

Illustrated by King Feature Syndicate, Inc.

CHAPTER TWENTY-NINE

Soon they went over to the salt-box to tell Mary, hand in hand as lovers do and not speaking, "because," said Judith, "he must know, first of all. If she doesn't think I am right for you..."

Matthew stopped her on the salt-box steps, turned her around, took her face in his hands and kissed her closed eyes and temples. He asked urgently, "Darling, will you marry me? Soon?"

Matthew's mother had heard them come in, and was out of bed reaching for robe and slippers when Matthew burst into her room. He had switched on all the living-room lights and was outlined against them. He did not need to speak, for Mary saw his face, and then Judith's.

Later Matthew and Judith sat on the little terrace of the salt-box and talked; or tried to talk. Mary had left them and gone back indoors. She had put a white coat around Judith's shoulders and said, "Matthew, take her back to the house... it's terribly late." Her voice had broken. Then she said, "I am so happy for you both."

When she had left them, Mary went back to her room, lying flat across the bed, not trying to sleep. She thought; this is what I wanted. She thought, without jealousy; but now he will not need me any more. Why had she come to this conclusion? Why had she not thought it when Matthew married Irene? Her heart was very tender toward Irene who had had so brief a time of happiness.

Matthew sat in an enormous chair on the terrace with Judith in his arms, saying softly, "You're so small and light."

"That's what you think," she retorted. "I grow larger and heavier as the moments pass."

"I could hold you, like this, forever."

"Half an hour, and you'd get up and spill me off." She yawned like a drowsy child. Judith was sleepy... excitement, tears, emotion, and then this transcendent happiness.

"Very complimentary," commented Matthew.

"I can't help it. I'm sleepy. Yet I'm wide-awake too." She turned a little in his arms, and put her cheek against his, "You need a shave," she said.

"You are marrying a man," he warned, "whose beard grows in the twinkling of an eye."

"Let me go, darling, and take me home. Mother may be awake. I want to tell her... and Aunt Ella."

"Let them sleep," he suggested, "you can tell them in the morning. May I come over for breakfast?"

She said wonderingly, "I can't believe it... I mean..."

"I know," He rose with Judith in his arms, set her on her feet, and took her close to him again. He said, after a moment, "It's a long time until spring."

"Terribly long," she admitted. "But we can wait."

It had been so arranged, talking with Mary: The engagement to be announced at the end of the year and the wedding in the spring. Matthew had demanded, "Why not now?"

He said it again. "Why not now—tomorrow—next week, as soon as possible?"

Judith, her arms about him, replied, "This is the better way... and, after a moment, added, 'If I speak of Irene, you won't mind? I loved you so much, I couldn't dislike her, because she loved you too, and made you happy... there are certain conventions... so I think that we should wait... your mother does, dear, I know that.'

He said, "Listen, Judy. I loved Irene, very much. Yet I do not think that I was deeply enough in love with her... I can't exactly explain. But I'm not discounting any of it. It wouldn't be fair to her, or to the way I felt about her. You understand that, don't you? This—this is different. I can't say how or why. Possibly because I am more mature, possibly—' He stopped, helpless. "I can't put it into words," he ended.

"I understand. I said I wasn't jealous. I'm not. There isn't room for anything but love and happiness. I just feel that this is right, that we belong to each other."

Judith did think with the beautiful arrogance, the tragic certainty, the divine folly of her youth and her ardor: She could not give you all that I can, my darling, no other woman could.

They walked back to the dim pink house together, over the dewy lawns... and nearby, because the dawn was not far away, a bird stirred in the branches and spoke sleepily, a melodic scolding, a lyrical disturbance.

Matthew said, "Darling, good night."

His arm was about her as they went up the steps and into the great square hall, dimly lit. He kissed her again and again, standing at the foot of the stairs. She said breathlessly, breaking away from him at last, "Will you ever get tired of kissing me, Matthew?"

"Come here."

"No," Judith went up the stairs, a little way, and then turned to look back at him. Matthew was standing there, his eyes intent upon her. She raised her hand and dropped it again. She was conscious that her ankles were wet with dew and that her hair was disheveled. She said, smiling, "There's lipstick on your cheek."

"Who cares?"

"I'll see you at breakfast."

"Not too late. I have to get back to town."

"Darling, must you?"

"Remember, you're marrying a doctor... in the spring."

Judith smiled, then the bend of the stairs hid her from him. He went out of the hall, and closed the great front door. The air, before dawn, was fresh and sweet. He could have walked endlessly, watching the darkness pale and the gray sky lighten until the golden spears of sunlight came thrusting through.

Matthew wanted to sing and shout. He wanted to talk to someone. He knocked on his mother's door and, when she answered, went in. She had just fallen asleep and he had wakened her. It wasn't the first time.

Mary said, "So, you're happy."

"I never knew what love was like before," he confessed.

"Of course,"

He said ruefully, "You have Judith on your side."

"What do you mean?"

"She agrees with you that we should wait until spring. I don't see why," he added; "of course, I know it's conventional, but—"

"—I understand, Matthew, but Judith's a member of a conventional family and yours is a conventional profession. People expect their physicians to—"

"What difference does it make?"

"None, I suppose. But, for Irene's sake—"

Matthew was silent a moment, then said, "Look... We were happy, Irene and I. We loved each other. She wouldn't object... she would be the first to—"

"Of course," Mary said, a little wearily, "and it is maybe a hollow convention, if you want to look at it that way. But you're young, Matthew, and you can wait."

He looked down at her. "Okay, I suppose so. But it's silly, if you ask me. You and Judith between you, the divine folly of her youth and her ardor: She could not give you all that I can, my darling, no other woman could."

"It's much nearer good morning," she reminded him.

At the door her son said casually, "I'll have breakfast with Judith."

"Fine," murmured Mary, "I can sleep." Then she thought, resignedly: Well, it begins. Once more the pattern of her life would be altered. In the spring she would re-adjust herself to living alone. Judith and Matthew would make their own home... Lynn will laugh, he's bound to say I planned this... Well, in the spring she would help Judith go house-hunting.

They were married, however, not in the far spring but in the near autumn, in October, with the trees flaming wine and gold, scarlet and mauve, brown and burgundy. They were married quietly in Ella's hotel suite, with no one present except Ella, propped up in bed on three pillows, Eva, Mary, and Lynn Mortimer.

For Ella's sins had found her out, and she was very much worse. She had returned to town in September and had proceeded to have two very acute attacks... and had said, when she was able to talk, following the second, "Matthew, I want you and Judith to be married... as soon as possible. I want to see you married."

Dr. Norman had said, nonsense, that she was an alarmist, but Ella had smiled at him. "You can't fool me," she'd scoff. "I'm worse and going to be no better fast. I didn't think you called in that battery of specialists for nothing. Look in my checkbook if you think it was for nothing!"

If at all possible a girl's parents—at least her father—should go with her to her fiancé's camp if she is to be married there or at a nearby town.

Words of Wisdom
We are too careless of posterity, not considering that as they are so the next generation will be.—Penn.

Today's Horoscope
You have definite likes and dislikes, but your love is sincere and strong. Your somewhat domineering, opinionated and moody nature makes you seem ungracious under opposition. However, you are very honest and just, but are unsympathetic to the injustice of others. Art, literature and music are your great interests. Provide ed you overcome irritability, good fortune will be realized in the next year, financially and socially. You may safely court, marry and push business. Children will bring happiness. Persistent, practical, optimistic, artistic, affectionate and hard-working will the child be who is born today. He or she will, however, also be quick-tempered and overbearing. Tolerance should be taught early.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

GET TWO FOR ONE

Bridge is full of situations in which a good player finds chances to give up one trick in order to get two or more later. Many of these are not obvious, but must be figured out by means of keen foresight. That rare quality marks one of the greatest differences between the average player and the star, and is well worth an effort to develop.

West took the opening trick with his heart Q, and switched to the club 4, which was a bit helpful to South, who took it with the J. Three spades scuttled the outstanding trumps, and South then cashed the club A and K.

Now came the unusual and brilliant move by the declarer, who was a canny Scotchman. He led his club 2, and West played the Q. You would now expect to see the declarer ruff that trick with the dummy's last trump, but he did no such thing. Instead he discarded the diamond 2. This placed West in the lead, with nothing left but diamonds. So no matter what he did, South's diamond K was good, and he was in position to ruff the third diamond in the dummy. Thus the declarer lost only one trick each in hearts, clubs and diamonds.

If South had ruffed his fourth club, he would have had to lead diamonds himself, and could not have avoided losing three tricks in the suit. This, together with the heart Q, would have beaten his contract.

COLONELS, HENS CONTINUE SCRAP AS RUNNERS-UP

By International News Service

Louisville and Toledo today continued to extend their heated battle for second place in the American Association standings behind the league leading Milwaukee Brewers.

Both Louisville and Toledo scored double victories Tuesday and after the smoke cleared away from the day's bill of fare, the Colonels still were ahead of the Mud Hens by the slim margin of one percentage point.

Louisville defeated last place Kansas City, 2-1, in the opening game which required 11 innings to decide and 8-3 in the nightcap.

Elmer Singleton, on the mound for the Blues, in the opener allowed only five hits, while his mates clubbed Jim Wilson and George Diehl for 11 safeties.

Toledo made it three in a row over the Minneapolis Millers by winning both ends of a double-header, 6-4 and 7-4. Earl Jones, Toledo left-hander who started the second game, equalled the season record for strikeouts in fanning 13 Millers. In all, there were 22 strikeout victims in the second game. Nine Toledo batters fanned.

Milwaukee went right on winning, cutting loose with an 18-hit assault against seventh-place Indianapolis to win 17-8.

Columbus managed to hang on fourth place and stay in the first division by dividing a twin bill with fifth-place St. Paul. The Flock won the opener, 9-6, with Elmer Burkhardt, recently received from Baltimore, gaining credit for the fourth inning by Wes Cunningham, who held the Saints in check the rest of the route.

The sacred books of Buddhism, the Pitaka, the Dharma and the Vinaya, contain 1,200 pages and nearly 30,000 Chinese characters.

CIRCLE CITY 10 ENDS LOOP PLAY WITH 18-2 WIN

Circle City was out in front again Wednesday in the City softball league race.

The dairy team took a half game lead over Blue Ribbon by trouncing Container Corporation 18-2 Tuesday evening at Ted Lewis park.

Ramey and Buskirk alternated on the mound for Container while Davis hurled for Circle City.

Wednesday Ralston-Purina and Economy Shoes meet in the last regularly-scheduled game of the league season. A postponed game between Blue Ribbon and Junior Chamber of Commerce remains to be played. If Blue Ribbon wins a one-game playoff between Blue Ribbon and Circle City for the league championship will be staged.

Thursday evening Kahn Jewelers and Harper-Thatcher girls teams from Columbus meet. Next Thursday a city tournament opens.

TWILIGHT TEAR FINALLY BEATEN

Unknown Vienna Defeats Calumet Farm Filly At Belmont Track

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—Weight will stop a freight train—or even a Twilight Tear, which remains among the greatest fillies of all time today and still leading candidate for horse of the year honors despite a defeat that nearly broke her heart.

Back down to what would have been an almost invisible payoff in a four-horse field, the queen of the Calumet stable ran with all the courage, wrapped up in her pretty nutmeg-colored hide, but was weary and a little wobbly as she hit the wire three-quarters of a length behind Vienna in the historic Alabama stakes at Belmont park late Tuesday.

Her head was down and it looked as though she might topple on her nose from the effort of it all, as for the first time in 12 straight starts since she last was whipped she had to see another filly beat her. Since her last defeat she has been whipping the colts regularly, such colts as her stablemate Pensive, winner of the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness.

Lugging 126 pounds in the person of the veteran Leon Haas, she spotted Vienna, under Jimmy Stout, 12 pounds and gave nine pounds to the other two starters.

Thread O'Gold, running coupled with Vienna as the Belair stud entry, and Dare Me.

When overhauled, Twilight Tear tried courageously to respond, quickened her pace for a stride or two, then hung while Vienna swept on across the wire in front, a popular victor with a handful of breed-improvers who were paid off at $18.20. Only $112,087 was bet on the race due to Twilight Tear's supposed invincibility at what would have been a $2.10 payoff. Of all the amount wagered everything went on the beaten favorite, except $17,632.

Thus was established an upset comparable to the one scored by Upset over Man O'War just 25 years ago in this same meeting.

So certain was the victory for the Calumet queen that trainer Ben Jones did not even bother to come on from Chicago for the race. It was such a cinch that the money-winning record established by Citumet in 1941 was seen as certain to be shattered. Instead the record was just missed, although Twilight Tear picked up the runnerup end of $3,000 to increase her earnings for the year to $131,790 in 13 races for lifetime winnings of more than $165,000 and she's been to the races only two years. She's three as were the others in the Alabama, which carried $15,000 added giving Vienna purse of $18,170.

49 BEARS START WORK FOR ALL STAR CONTEST

COLLEGEVILLE, Ind., Aug. 9.—The Chicago Bears, National Football league champions, were assembled in their new training camp at St. Joseph's college today preparatory to their fifth clash with a college all-star aggregation the night of August 30.

Forty-nine Bears, among whom there were more new faces than veterans, made the trip from Chicago together. They soon were to be joined by eight more squad members who were to arrive directly from their homes.

HAMBLETONIAN RACE ON TODAY

Yankee Maid Is Favorite In Kentucky Derby Of Harness Racing

GOSHEN, N. Y., Aug. 9.—They finally beat Twilight Tear, but can it happen to Yankee Maid?

The 19th running—or, rather, trotting—of the $34,427 Hambletonian for three-year-olds presents Yankee Maid, an illustrious filly, as a pronounced favorite at 4 to 5 in the best-of-three races at a mile, which probably will be seen by 20,000 people.

Everything points to a decisive victory for Yankee Maid, owned by A. L. Derby, a wealthy Wichita, Kans., oil man. Except for one heat in which she broke off the trotting gait, she has beaten the contention in today's classic eight straight times this year, usually with a stretch drive that was a little too much for the others to withstand. Red Tower, the only three-year-old to have beaten her, is not a Hambletonian entry.

The next choices in the event are Enac, owned by William H. (Bill) Cane, the man on whose track the hayseed derby will be run today, and Gibson White's Rose Dean. Enac, which was second to Yankee Maid in the important championship stallion stakes at North Randall, Ohio, and the national stakes at Old Orchard, Me., will probably go to the post at 3 to 1.

Strong sentimental support will be back of Rose Dean because she is to be driven by 71-year-old Ben White, the only man to have won the Hambletonian four times. White is out for his third in a row. He won with Volo Song last year and the Ambassador in 1942. His first victory was with Mary Reynolds in 1933, and he followed behind Rosalind in 1936.

Seven fillies and four colts are due to go to the post for the first heat at 3 p. m. ewt., and if one of the ladies comes through it will be the first time a filly has won since Shirley Hanover set the existing record of 2:01-1/4 in 1937. Henry Thomas, who had the reins on her, will be behind Yankee Maid, seeking his third triumph in the classic.

He and White are among five former victors who have sulks in today's big race. The others are Tom Berry, Sep Palin and Fred Egan.

RED BIRDS TO RETURN HOME THIS SATURDAY

COLUMBUS—For the first time in five seasons the Columbus Red Birds will be battling for a first division berth as they return for their 21-game home stay starting Saturday. Since 1940 the Birds have customarily clinched a first division spot by this time in the season and have had their sights trained on first place. This year, due to their disastrous road trip, the club will have to hit a higher pace to qualify for the Governor's Cup series, which they have won for the last three years.

The four western clubs and Toledo will be met before the Flock winds up its home stay. The Birds take to the road again on August 30, meeting the three eastern clubs before returning for a final visit on September 6.

Special attractions will be presented at the Mound street field when the Birds return. Knott's Gang nights and Ladies nights have been scheduled, while three special nights are expected to attract large turnouts. Special nights include Nick Cullip Night on August 15, Forty and Eight Night on August 21 and Zoo Night on August 28.

SECOND LARGEST DAILY DOUBLE PAID AT CHICAGO

CHICAGO, Aug. 9.—The combination of a 30 to 1 shot and a 4 to 1 shot accounted for the latest big daily double payoff—one of $836.40—at the Washington park track.

It was the second largest of the season at the coordinated Arlington-Washington park meeting, with 52 race fans cashing in for $2 investments and one for a $10 wager which brought him $4,182.

The winning combination was made up of Mrs. J. A. Nix's Hy-Trite, which paid $11 straight, and Trent and Farris's More Stings, which paid $63, in Tuesday's first and second races.

HART STOPS SHUCCO

WASHINGTON, Aug. 9.—Swarming over his smaller opponent with football tactics, Pvt. Al Hart, 226-pound Camp Kilmear, N. J., soldier, today held 7-round T. K. O. over Tony Shucco, veteran Boston heavyweight.

BROWNS HOPE TO CINCH FLAG WHILE IN EAST

NEW YORK, Aug. 9.—The St. Louis Browns steamed into Yankee stadium today with an eight-game winning streak, a 6½ game edge in the American League standings and a determination to shake off their eastern pursuers in the next week.

They opened a four-game series with the third place Yanks, then will move on to Boston for four with the second place Red Sox, after which some kind of a line will be had on the chances of the Sox or Yanks' to pull down the Browns.

The Yanks are one game behind the second place Red Sox and were all set to begin moving up, if the Browns will hold still long enough. While the Yanks are taking these initial cracks at the Browns on this invasion, the Red Sox will be engaging the Chicago White Sox.

This invasion will might be termed some kind of crucial test for the Browns—or for the Red Sox and Yankees—for finally toward the finish of the season the Browns will be at home for the finish of the season and if they dig in on home grounds with any kind of a lead they may never be blasted out.

Besides the Brown-Yankee tussle and the one between the White Sox and Red Sox at Boston, other American League tilts on today's schedule included Cleveland at Philadelphia and Detroit at Washington in night games.

The St. Louis Cardinals, with a 16½ game lead in the National League, opened a series at home with the Philadelphia Phillies, Brooklyn was at Chicago, Boston at Cincinnati and the New York Giants and the Pirates continued their series at Pittsburgh.

The Giants won 8-4 the opener of a five-game series with the Corsairs in the only major league game played yesterday.

The New Yorkers piled on Max Butcher and Xavier Rescigno for 15 hits to enable Bill Voiselle to score his 14th victory of the season.

DODGERS PLAN TRYOUT CAMP AT ZANESVILLE, O.

ZANESVILLE—A tryout camp offering young athletes an opportunity to determine if they have the ability to play baseball professionally will be conducted at Municipal Stadium here by the Brooklyn Dodger organization from Monday, August 21 through Thursday, August 24.

Boys 16 or older who are not competing in American Legion baseball are invited to report to Municipal Stadium for trials. Rickey said. To receive tryouts boys need only present themselves at the field Monday, August 21, at 9 a. m., bringing their shoes, gloves and uniforms. No fee is charged. However, out-of-town boys must finance their trips to Zanesville and living expenses while here.

Boys who are offered and sign contracts with clubs in the Brooklyn organization on the strength of their showings in camps will be refunded any expenses incurred in attending.

TRIBE IN PHILADELPHIA

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 9.—The Cleveland Indians will open their 16-game eastern stand tonight against the Philadelphia Athletics, with Al Smith, the veteran south-paw, selected to do the hurling which is hoped will break the Tribe's six-game losing streak. Buck Newsum will be pegging them across for the A's.

JUNIOR CIRCUIT TO START PLAY MONDAY NIGHT

Dan McClain Elected Head Of Younger Boys Softball Loop

Play in the junior softball league will open Monday at 6:30 p. m. with East End meeting West End at Ted Lewis park.

Dan McClain was elected president of the league and rules and regulations drawn up at a meeting of managers Tuesday night at the Herald office.

Managers agreed to limit rosters to 13 boys 16 or younger and two boys 17. Names of the 17-year-old boys were drawn by the managers and will play with the teams which drew their names. No players who have participated in the City softball league will be permitted on the junior teams.

Two rounds of play are planned. Games will be played on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of each week with Thursday and Friday evenings held open for postponed games.

Teams in the league and their managers are: North End, Elmer Barr; West End, Paul Beck and "Wink" Wellington; South End, Wilson "Pete" Clark; East End, Paul "Snow" Seymour.

Schedule for the first round:

Monday, Aug. 14—East End vs. West End.

Tuesday, Aug. 15—North End vs. South End.

Wednesday, Aug. 16—East End vs. North End.

Monday, Aug. 21—South End vs. West End.

Tuesday, Aug. 22—West End vs. North End.

Wednesday, Aug. 23—East End vs. South End.

First named team is the home team.

Pickaway Countians Making Greater Use of City Library

38,979 VOLUMES
ISSUED DURING LAST HALF YEAR

Younger Readers Withdraw
For Home Use Total
Of 17,914 Books

Pickaway countians are making greater use of the facilities of the Circleville public library, the report for the first six months of 1944 by Mrs. Enid Denham, librarian, revealed Wednesday.

During the period 38,979 books and magazines were withdrawn from the library as compared with 35,486 volumes for the first six months of 1943, the report shows.

Of this number younger readers withdrew for home use 17,914 volumes. Adult circulation numbered 6,431 non-fiction, 12,588 fiction and 2,046 books of popular reserve making the total of adult books withdrawn 21,065.

Literature took first place as a class, 1,357 volumes being circulated for home use, many of these to supplement the high school collection. A total of 735 periodicals was taken from the library to be read at home. Pamphlets, maps and pictures as well as book jackets loaned to schools made a total of more than 1,500 for the unbound material of this nature.

Service To County

Teachers' classroom circulation numbered 2,403. This is an extra service to the children of Pickaway county. "It is interesting to note," Mrs. Denham pointed out, "that in the circulation of one day alone more than one third of the books are withdrawn by county residents who have availed themselves of this library service also open to them."

One of the highlights of activities included in the report is the establishment of the children's room. "Daddy, a little room all of our very own and with all of our books in it. And it's so cute!" is the way one small child expressed her enthusiasm.

Youth Service

Other activities include the establishment of a Junior-Senior high school section (Young Moderns) with chairs and tables of their own; a children's story hour held every Wednesday during the Summer at 10:30 a. m. with a regular clientele that averages about 25 each week; cooperative work with Boy Scouts who are working on their Merit badges and class honors; a vacation book club that now numbers more than 80 active members many of whom have already finished their required 15 books and are continuing for the joy of it.

A few of the books added for the juvenile collection include these new picture books: "Cocky, the Little Helicopter," by Jack Alden; "Time to Eat," a book of foods and children, by Dentier; "When we grow up," by Gladys Mitchell; "Miss Lizzie," by Jane Miller; "Kiki and Muffy," by Steiner. Fiction includes: "Topsy Turvy Family," by Brock; "Runaway Toys," by Crabtree; "Jerry Jake Carries On," "Lizzie," and "Nancy of Apple Tree Hill," all of these stories of the Smoky Mountain folks told by one of them, May Justus; "Sword is Drawn," by Andre Norton; "Storks Fly Home," by Jane Tompkins; "Sigurd and his Brave Companions," by Sigrid Undset; "Swords and Sails in the Philippines," by Sowers; "Heart Specialist," by Lorimers—more of those "Maudie" stories.

Non-fiction include: "Land of William of Orange," by Barnow; "Story of the Great Plains," by McNear; "First the Flower, Then the Fruit," by Lucas.

TOO BUSY TO WORK
WILKES-BARRE, Pa.—Mayor Con McCole, of Wilkes-Barre, recently tried to enlist some domestic help while addressing 450 women members of the Wyoming Valley Retreat Guild. When all offers proved fruitless, he finally said: "O.K., then. That's the kind of members you have—not a woman in the house who wants to work."

PUPILS TO AID IN COLLECTION OF MILK WEED

Pickaway county schools will help in the collection of milkweed floss, vitally needed by the armed services. Superintendent George McDowell announced Wednesday.

A shipment of bags from the government in which the milkweed pods are to be collected will be received soon at the superintendent's office and distributed to schools over the county.

Picking of milkweed pods may be done any time after the seeds begin to turn brown and until the pods have opened, but before the floss has blown away. Pods usually are not ripe until the middle of September but the current dry spell may cause them to ripen sooner.

The floss is used as a substitute for kapok in life jackets. The kapok supply from the East Indies has been cut off and the need for the milkweed substitute is critical, government agencies say.

"E" FOR ERRORS?

Navy Department officials aren't saying anything about it, but they have received several complaints from workers in war plants who want to know why the armed forces are making a farce of the Army-Navy E awards. The Navy is actually granting E's to companies found guilty of war frauds against the Allies.

Fact is, Anaconda Wire and Cable got its third Army-Navy E award July 17, although officials of one of the company's plants had been indicted and convicted for sending faulty copper wire to the Russian army. The court record showed that this wire was for communications between units of the Red Army, but was completely faulty. Once it had been put to use on the Eastern Front, it might have cost thousands of Russian lives. Yet, despite these convictions, Anaconda continues to win Navy E's for excellence.

Workers in war plants, looking at the flag flying over the Anaconda factories, with a big E whipping through the air, now say, "They must be giving out those E's for errors."

CAPITAL CHAFF

One thing Lt. Gen. McNair did before he was killed was to provide longer furloughs for trainees. In a letter to Congressman (former Private) Henry Jackson of Washington, McNair wrote: "As to a little longer furlough for trainees leaving the RTC's, I appreciate the force of your views. Accordingly, instructions will be issued shortly increasing the period at home from seven to ten days. Thanks for your suggestion in this matter." Stanley Arnold, the Cleveland boy who claims that the most important war dates have been on the 7th and 11th, now points out that Thomas Dewey has 11 letters in his name and that the election is on the 7th of November. Despite the anti-Roosevelt furor in Louisiana, E. A. Stephens, businessman candidate for the Senate against incumbent Senator Overton, has announced: "I am going to vote for President Roosevelt as Commander-in-Chief. I also want to go on record that any elector elected by the people should cast his ballot in accord with the mandate of the people. Louisiana's vote must be counted. Southern honor permits no other course." With the spotlight focused on our troublesome neighbor, Ray Joseph's book "Argentine Diary" is going like wildfire. When the American Trucking Association took full-page newspaper ads calling on Col. Bradley Dewey to reconsider his resignation as Rubber Director, Dewey didn't read the ads for two full days. Asked for his reaction later, he said he hadn't read them but remembered the line of big type at the top. It read: "Wait a minute, Mr. Dewey!" Col. Dewey couldn't understand that it meant him, thought it really meant, "Wait a minute, Governor Dewey!"

FARLEY CHANGES HIS MIND

Here's the story of Jim Farley's trip to the Democratic convention. He was primed and loaded with ammunition to upset a fourth term. But en route, he met former Mayor John Durkan of Scranton, Pa., a long-time friend and counselor of Farley's, a man who has dined with the President, wine and kings, and who once saved Farley a small fortune by advising him not to get mixed up in the old Pierce-Arrow company, which subsequently went to the wall.

Durkan, travelling with Jim, prevailed on him to hold his peace and his tongue. So convincing did the former Mayor put it, that Jim wrapped up his tirade and just sat looking and listening at Chicago.

2.04 FOOT DROP REGISTERED IN WATER TABLE

Pickaway county water table dropped 2.04 feet during April, May and June, according to figures received by the county extension office.

The report covered the three month period ending July 1 and was based on reports submitted by observers in various parts of the county.

The report shows the state-wide average decrease in ground water is 2.51 feet for the three-month period and 1.63 feet for the year. No yearly difference is shown for Pickaway county because records have not been kept that long. Biggest three-month decrease was reported in Jefferson county which had a 10.13 feet decrease. Morrow county reported a 2.40 feet increase.

Continued dry weather since July 1 has dropped the water level still more, but no reports are available.
